Getting to Know a Character

In the beginning of a story, you meet a character. Most of the time, you learn the character's name and if the character is a boy or girl. You also may find out something about the character's friends or family.

By the end of the story, you know more about the character as a person. You know how the character acted when events in the story took place. You know the choices the character made.

CINDERELLA

What did you know about Cinderella at the beginning of the story?

What did you learn about Cinderella by the end of the story?

Look at it this way: If you knew Cinderella in real life, would you want her as a friend? Why or why not?
